SUMMER 2022
LUING FAMILY
INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

Environmental Education

Are you ready to sink waist-deep into a fast-paced environmental education program? Want to learn a wide range of new skills in a variety of diverse habitats? Are you prepared to spend your days basking in sunlight, wading through marshes, meeting new people, swimming in the ocean, and reveling in the best Mother Nature has to offer?

Designed to introduce you to the Environmental Education and Interpretation profession, this internship, supported in part by the Barbara and Jim Summers Intern Endowment Fund, will further your career, all while you explore one of America’s most incredible natural areas.

If being wet, muddy, and happy at day’s end sounds like your dream job, then we want you at The Wetlands Institute. Interns will help lead programs for all ages, interact directly with live marine animals, teach outreach programs, and assist with a variety of other programs and special events to promote the New Jersey Shore and its spectacular salt marshes to tourists and residents.

Housing is not available for this internship. Applicants must live locally. Two years of college and reliable transportation required.

Application Process: To apply, please submit a complete application package including: cover letter, resume and completed internship application form. Internship application forms may be downloaded from our website at: wetlandsinstitute.org/education/internship-opportunities/

Applications must be received by February 20, 2022.
